STRESS MANAGEMENT

Typical stressors:
- Repeatedly hearing survivors’ stories
- Approaching survivors who may reject help
- Feeling overwhelmed by the sadness of others
- Feeling helpless to alleviate the pain of others
- Working long hours
- Personal experience with the disaster

Warning signs of excessive stress:
- You cannot shake distressing images from your mind.
- You experience increased substance use or abuse.
- You are excessively irritable and impatient.
- You exhibit other serious or severe reactions.

Manage stress through:
- Self-awareness.
- Managing workload.
- Balanced lifestyle.
- Stress-reduction techniques.
- Feeling competent and confident about work.
- Talking with your supervisor or team leader.

OUTREACH STRATEGIES
Ask yourself the following:

- Who is the gatekeeper for this specific community? (There could be several.)
- What are the target populations? (Locate special populations.)
- Where are people in the community gathering? (Be practical—grocery stores, local “hot spots.”)
- How will natural support systems be contacted? (e.g., schools, faith-based organizations)
- What other organizations are doing outreach? (Collaborate; do not reinvent the wheel.)

Working with groups:
- Ensure individuals are ready for the group process.
- Facilitate the exchange of information.
- Foster new ways of adapting and coping.
- Provide education and practical assistance.
- Increase the social support network.

Working with communities:
- Establish and maintain contact with community groups and leaders.
- Participate in community gatherings and rituals by maintaining a compassionate presence.
- Provide education on disaster reactions, coping strategies and disaster relief resources.
- Use public education and media messaging to provide information.

BE AWARE

Do:
- Be respectful and empathetic.
- Provide a supportive presence.
- Acknowledge that this type of stress can take time to resolve.
- Reflect that you have heard them correctly.
- Show interest, attention, and care.
- Use appropriate body language.
- Be sensitive to cultural differences.

Don’t:
- Rush to tell them they will be okay or should just “get over it.”
- Give advice; ask what works for them instead.
- Be insensitive or judgmental.
- Change, modify, or add to what they are saying.

TOOLS FOR SURVIVORS

Promote self-reliance by teaching the following:

Goal-setting tools
- Identify and prioritize needs.
- Develop a plan of action to address needs.
- Follow through, and remain solution focused.

Social support tools
- Identify primary or familial supports.
- Reach out to use available supports.
- Identify options when support is not working.

Coping tools
- Positive activity scheduling
- Helpful thinking
- Stress management

Resilience building tools
- Maintain a positive self-image and outlook.
- Utilize effective communication skills.
- Manage strong feelings and impulses.
- Focus on finding solutions.
- Make realistic plans, and carry them out.

EMERGENCY REFERRALS

Call your team leader immediately if:
- Someone has the intent or means to harm self or others.
- Functioning is so poor that person’s (or dependent’s) safety is in danger.
- Excessive substance use is placing the person or others at risk.
- A child’s safety or health is at risk.
- The person exhibits severe paranoia, delusions, or hallucinations.
