ABOUT RELATIONSHIPS MATTER!

Relationships Matter! A Webinar Series on Women’s Behavioral Health explores the role of relationships in women’s behavioral health care and recovery. This five-part series provides research, best practice, and critical thinking about topics professionals need to know when working with women.

Why talk about relationships? Women place a great emphasis on the relationships in their lives. Relationships play a critical role in women’s substance use and its consequences, experiences of trauma, and the expression and severity of symptomology. Healthy relationships are essential in engagement, treatment, and interventions, and ongoing recovery.

Relationships Matter! combines research and women’s voices with practice applications and resources for ongoing learning that will help build the workforce capacity to address the specific needs of women and provide gender-sensitive care.
